To Whom It May Concern:

I have known Louis Alloin since 1981 and have the upmost respect for him and love for Jean, his mother. Louis lived with me for several years in the 80's and I found him to be honest, industrious and talented with computers and railroad management. The fact that Louis happens to be Gay has no negative effect on his character.

Louis is not a trouble-maker. I believe he would run away from a troublesome situation, then stand his ground to protect himself and his family. He is also extremely protective of Jean, his mother. The trips he plan each year have contributed greatly to her health and well-bring since they encourage her to remain active. I envy her energy and spunk.

I understand that there is a plot to try and evict Louis and Jean because of some petty and childish politics of a few apparently senile neighbors and the viciousness of someone named Julie Combs. I am told that they are combining their disagreements with anti LGBTQ issues. Please correct me if I am wrong, but I believe the U.S. Supreme Court has declared people who are categorized as LGBTQ (Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans-sexual, Queer) to be equal with non LGBTQ people in the eyes of the law. Even Pope Francis has declared them to be equal in the eyes of God.

No matter what your opinion, acceptance by the Law and the Lord should be good enough for the both of us.

Louis has been Gay since age 6. Sadly he has been victimized through both physical and emotional aggression causing him to be ultra-sensitive to these issues, which in turn causes a distorted reaction by Louis. But defending one's rights should not be just cause for eviction. On the contrary, Louis is an asset to his community, a hard worker and brilliant innovator in the transportation industry.
